Accessibility

In accordance with the historical character of the Garden of Pojega, some solutions have been implemented to promote an inclusive visiting experience.

Tactile panels are available for blind and visually impaired visitors, as well as videos with subtitles for deaf visitors.

However, we would like to point out that, due to its monumental and landscape design, the Garden has architectural barriers that may make access difficult for people with motor disabilities. The path unfolds over multiple levels connected by stairways, following the original 18th-century layout. Several sections include slopes and natural surfaces.

For further information, please contact the Garden's management before planning a visit.
